COMPANIONS ON THE JOURNEY

20 years, 2.5 million meals, thousands of smiles, hugs, thanks, tears, and life stories. It has been an incredible education in understanding not only the human condition, but the fragility, fierce strength, and generosity of the human heart.

2009 was a difficult year economically. Jobs were lost, businesses closed, the housing market took a pretty big dive, H1N1 made its way to the USA, thousands of pigs were put to death for no reason, and hungry people grew hungrier and more fearful.

The lines at OPERATION: Sack Lunch grew even longer as more and more people became reliant on our service to meet their nutritional needs. Donations took a nose dive, Corporate and Foundation grants became harder to obtain, and everything went to hell in a hand basket!

And yet, through all this hardship, OSL continued to do what we do so well; share love through each and every meal that we serve to those in need. We did not do this by ourselves. We did it with every dollar that each of you shared with us to continue our work, with each hour volunteered by those committed to changing the world one meal at a time, and to all who partnered with us to form a strong and sustainable collaboration designed to link human services together for so many of our neighbors in need.

We have much to be grateful for; our outstanding and committed staff, our host kitchen and friends at the Compass Center, for a dedicated group of board members lending their talent and time to keep our wheels on the road, and for all the small kindnesses and great hearts that we come in contact with every day.

We are always grateful to our donors and volunteers. Without your trust and belief in the work we do we would not be able to continue to affect so many lives. We are especially grateful for our 2009 business partner and benefactor, ATS AUTOMATION, by whose generosity and faith our doors remained open in the most difficult of our organizational years.

One of the most important elements to OSL's successes as an organization has been the collaborations and relationships we have fostered and nurtured over the years. We are vision oriented with a pragmatic approach. We have partnerships with many other organizations, City Government, and the community at large. The energy of the world changes when these types of partnerships are formed, when the greater good becomes paramount.

It is true that 20 years ago, in 1989, this organization began simply as a one day project. Although I played a small part as the catalyst, the real work was made possible by the literally thousands of people that also played a role throughout our organizational history. From our clients, our volunteers, our donors, our partners, and our staff.

We have all grown; older and perhaps and hopefully, humbly wiser. As we move forward into our 21st year we embrace new ideas, expanded leadership, and a fervent hope that one day we all will be nourished in a way that is life giving; physically, emotionally, mentally, and spiritually. Thank you for your support and generosity. Here's to a new year full of hope!

We are companions on the journey

It is a journey of the heart

We are not strangers, we've known each other

We've been companions,

Together from the start

Gratitude sits at the table
And wonders why there is gloom
There's food and there's drink, dishes in the sink

Plenty of love in the room
The house has a roof
the rooms are all warm
The lights all still work
there is shelter from the storm

Why all the gloom
Why the distrust
Why do we covet
Why do we lust
After things that are fleeting
Things that command
That we mortgage our souls
cut off our right hand

Gratitude wonders
as she drives to the bank
can we learn to be satisfied will we know how to thank

Gratitude sometimes gets worried
That we all expect way too much

That we.... want without earning
And have a deep yearning
For the things that we never can touch

Graciousness walks down the driveway
Waving her hand like a star
She is serene
So calm,
And so kind
She has traveled the world, near and far
She never knows if she's understood
She'd feed the whole world if only she could
she is loving and sweet and enormously good

Grace has settled on the sofa
She is wise, she is calm, she is kind
She never judges the taste of the food
She never refuses the wine

Grace is always accepting
Yet hopes for the day peace succeeds
She gently touches each face with her smile
Yet deep in her heart
Grace still bleeds

Grace has a Vision
that Lions and Lambs
Will curl up together...no fear

Grace has a mission
that we will join hands
That peace of the heart
is already here

Does anyone know
How to be thankful?
To show mercy and love
To be kind
Do we ever check in with our teachers?
Is there vision
or are we all blind
To the truth, to the love,
To the goodness
The knowledge
The knowing
The way
Can we ever simply live in this moment?
Can we give all to this instant?
This... day

Gratitude
Graciousness
Grace

All sisters of the great word
Peace will abide
Truth will unfold
And Love
will finally be heard

OSL BOARD MEMBER HIGHLIGHTS

EAT REAL FOOD by ANNE ALFRED OSL BOARD Secretary

Snohomish County Health Department Inspector

You are what you eat. Organic, local, sustainable foods are in the spotlight right now. Food guru and author Michael Pollan wrote in one of his bestselling books to “eat food”. The USDA is revamping school lunch requirements, now focusing on providing healthy choices instead of using our children as a way to dispose of our agricultural commodities.

Seattle city council member Richard Conlin wrote the local food initiative, adopted by the city council in April 2008. One goal is to “Improve public health by providing increased access to healthy, culturally appropriate, and locally and regionally grown foods, especially for low income households”. Our local public health agencies have banned trans fats, require menu labeling, and are partnering with community groups to support healthy eating and active living. A tax on simple sugars, like sodas, may be next.

Meanwhile, the USDA recently announced new numbers for hunger in 2008, and nationally over 14% of the population is “food insecure”. This is the highest percentage of hungry people since 1995, when the agency first started measuring hunger, or lack of calorie supply to a person, in the general population.

Yes, there is a big difference between calories and nutrition. Calories keep one alive, but nutrition supports life. Food banks and meal programs receive food from grocers and distributors. Donated foods are often those poor nutritional quality calories, donations of sodas and pastries and things that did not sell, have a long shelf life, and are now being ‘surplused’. These foods given to a population that is already compromised by their situation; broke, maybe homeless, perhaps with physical health, mental health or addiction issues.

This is where OPERATION: Sack Lunch comes in. OSL has been feeding people for 20 years. But they don’t just feed people, and they don’t just provide calories, but food, real food, the kind promoted in bestselling books, public health and the Seattle city council. They were doing this long before it was popular and have withstood much criticism for continuing to advocate for safe, nutritionally viable food, uncontaminated by harmful chemicals. Foods that can contribute to health of those served; physical health, mental health, spiritual health. OSL has a core value that “Nutritional Excellence is a right we are born to, not a privilege we earn”. Those who are economically challenged have a right to eat real, nutritious, even organic-when-available, food.

Somehow, that doesn’t seem radical or outrageous. It seems that we should care for those who have received less in this society. That a senior citizen with diabetes should receive a fresh vegetable, a high quality protein, a kind word. But providing real food is radical. By promoting real food, OPERATION: Sack Lunch is raising the bar for everyone. Everyone. OSL brings this message of health and true compassion to all who provide for food insecure people. OSL walks the talk, out there on the front line, that politicians and health agencies preach. OSL is the real deal.

THANK YOU

Our thanks to the following organizations for their support of OPERATION: Sack Lunch and for making our work possible:
The Compass Center, our kitchen host,
St. John Vianney, hosts our walk-in freezer and dry storage,
Food LifeLine and North West Harvest contribute thousands of lbs of donated food weekly,
City of Seattle, Human Service Department, for their continued encouragement and support.
